In November 2021, Musical.ly, Inc. announced that they had applied for an IPO with the SEC and would be listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the ticker symbol "LY". The company stated that they hoped to raise around $100 million from their IPO. Following the announcement of its IPO, Tencent announced that it had sold off its stake in Musical.ly and plans to re-invest $750 million into the company. The company also said that it planned to use some of this money to allow users who didn't want to create a Musical.ly account to share their content on TikTok.", Tiktok FYP has been created by Kevin Wu and Robert Chuang as a student project at the University of Houston in 2021. They had previously created another app, MaxClips, which was presented at SXSW 2021 in Austin. The release of Tiktok FYP was funded by a program run by the Texas Emerging Technology Fund (TEDF).",

In an article published by The Verge, it was alleged that "The complaint said more than 852 million people used Musical.ly worldwide in 2021. And despite its name â€• which evokes the question-and-answer site Quora â€• Musical.ly has begun to extend beyond allowing users to lip-sync popular songs for one another. Last year, the company rolled out a social-networking component called the Universe that helps users interact with one another." This article was published on The Verge.", TikTok attracts advertisers by combining videos from self-made creators with those recorded by popular artists into one app. The company was able to sign up brands including Pepsi, Red Bull and Taco Bell within its first few months of operation. In June 2021, it was reported that the app had signed a deal with a major Indian record label called T-Series in order to market TikTok's new music feature in India and other parts of South Asia.",

The following is a list of some of TikTok's most popular users: There have been numerous cases where it has been observed that popular users on TikTok have not only become famous and gained a huge online following from posting videos online, but also have received lucrative sponsorship deals to promote certain products or services to their followers. This has led to speculation that TikTok has used a strategy similar to pay-for-play in order to get these individuals on board as brand ambassadors for certain companies. For example, in January 2021, the most followed girl on TikTok was seen promoting an air purifier for Amway before she even started posting on the app. The following is a list of some of the companies that have sponsored celebrities/users on TikTok:",

You might think of Q4 2021 as a "transition" quarter. For the first time, ByteDance accounted for all of its mobile monetization businesses (which this report is about) QQ.com (China), Musical.ly (U.S.), Toutiao and Jinri Toutiao (China). It also counted all of its employees in one location Beijing, China. We're going to do a deep dive into the business models and revenue sources for these mobile businesses next week.", Another article in the U.S. detailed a similar experience which had happened to a child. In this article, it was reported that "There is no age restriction on the app, but you must be older than 13 or have permission from a parent or guardian to set up an account." However, after this incident of questionable content being posted by two 15-year-old girls, it was revealed that TikTok took down not only the inappropriate video but also all of their other posts due to violating their policies and community guidelines regarding sensitive content.",

This is considered by some experts to be unfair because it requires subscribers

(which are estimated to be over 100 million) to pay just so they can be allowed to post their own content onto the platform. The fact that this feature can be used to prevent people from sharing content which they should be allowed to post has also concerned some users. Another concern with this particular aspect of TikTok's business model is that it may be a violation of the app's terms and conditions as well as the policies of any app stores where TikTok is installed. To access TikTok, a user must agree to the app's terms and conditions when they have downloaded it onto their device. For example, users on both Google Play and the Apple Store agree not only to allow TikTok to access their location but also "to use your name, likeness, and voice in connection with commercial, sponsored or related content ("endorsements"), either identified or anonymous. You agree that if you wish for your Content to remain anonymous, or your public profile does not contain your real name, you will not use your real name in connection with any Endorsements." This suggests that a user may be required to pay in order to retain their anonymity while posting videos on TikTok (this is because the app may ask them to use their real name and/or add other details such as their age while posting their video). The term "endorsement" (as defined by the Oxford dictionary) means: "the action of publicly expressing approval and support of somebody/something by a gesture (such as a wave or an item of clothing) or words. The act of publicly advertising a product or service by an individual or organization.""

TikTok operates on both iOS and Android platforms. The app was launched on iOS in January 2021. The Android app was launched in the same month. On April 11, 2021, it announced that the app reached one billion installs and became available to download for Android devices in Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore and Thailand as a beta version. On May 11, 2021 it announced that the app became available in Indonesia and the Philippines as an official version of the application following its beta testing phase.",

In January 2021, TikTok had reached 150 million monthly active users with 2 billion total downloads from both Apple's App Store and Google Play, making it one of the most popular apps. In September 2021, the company reached 200 million monthly active users on iOS devices.",

In an attempt to avoid its user base getting older faster than the app's overall demographic, Tiktok has made changes to its algorithm so that older content will be pushed out further down in the queue. While this will push some content off the front page, it should keep a stream of new content coming through your feed while also encouraging users to explore other features. "To show the right content to the right audience at the right time, we need to make sure that we're considering personalization across all our platforms and experiences," said Deya Xu, TikTok's chief product officer. "Our work in refining our algorithms and using machine learning to increase relevancy is a significant part of how we are doing this.""

TikTok was created in order to help users express themselves through visual media such as music and video in a more freeform manner compared to Instagram or Twitter, where users are more confined in how much content they can post without fear of being edited out by their followers. The success of TikTok also lies in its uses as a marketing tool for brands. A study performed by UpStream found that 41% of users on TikTok are engaged with brands and 47% of users follow at least one brand. Some brands are making their own content on the platform such as Coca-Cola, FC Barcelona and others.",
